ANNUAL REPORT OF THE COMMISSIONER

Beset by problems of affordability and availability, auto insurance continued to be troublesome from a regulatory point of view. Without the needed legislative reforms supported by the Department of Insurance, including revision of the No-Fault threshold and replacement of the existing assigned risk mechanism by a Joint Underwriting Association, the market remained unsettled, with the companies demanding huge rate increases and more and more drivers finding themselves shunted into the assigned risk plan despite good driving records. By year's end, at least one million New Jerseyans were insured through the assigned risk plan as the companies remained reluctant to write any significant amount of new business voluntarily.

Although overall insurance prices showed no sign of coming down, the best hope for at least an equitable re-distribution of auto insurance costs among policyholders lay in reform of the driver classification and territorial rating systems, which had been the subject of a nearly year-long public hearing by the Department of Insurance in 1979. The Department's actuarial staff devoted considerable time and effort in 1980 to an evaluation of the record of the hearing and planned to publish its report and order for changes in 1981.

In other areas of insurance regulation, the outlook was much brighter. The market for hospital malpractice insurance continued to perform exceptionally well; minimum standards were devised for individual health insurance policies, and a rating system for title insurance was put into place.

AUTO INSURANCE

The upward pressure on auto insurance rates remained unabated.

A continuing pattern of increasing losses in the New Jersey Automobile Insurance Plan, which is the assigned risk mechanism for the state, persuaded the commissioner to grant rate relief toward the end of the year. However, instead of a percentage increase, which would have imposed disproportionate burdens among policyholders, the commissioner approved an increase to be distributed across the board as a flat additional charge per car so that the NJAIP subsidy would be borne equally.

The additional charge was $30 per car for those with the minimum liability coverage plus another $4 for those with comprehensive coverage and $8 for those with collision coverage, making the total $42 for cars with full coverage. The charge was slightly higher for cars with increased limits of liability.

The charge applied to all cars, including those in the voluntary market and those in the assigned risk. It is expected to generate an additional $151 million in premium per year, which is 11.8 per cent of the total premium paid by New Jersey motorists.

Although the assigned risk mechanism was originally intended for drivers with poor records on the road and those with a high risk potential, the NJAIP has grown to a record number of about one million drivers, nearly one out of every four drivers in the state. Of these, about 800,000 have good records and, under ordinary market conditions, would obtain their insurance directly from the companies without having to go through the NJAIP.

However, for the last several years, the companies have been restricting their voluntary writings to the point where the voluntary market has virtually dried up. The companies' refusal to take on new business voluntarily is an expression of their dissatisfaction with the state's tight control of the rates.

Because there are good drivers in the plan, the NJAIP is not permitted its own rating system for the mandated liability coverages. Instead, it is required to use the rates approved for the Insurance Services Office, a rating bureau for about 200 companies. However, drivers with records of chargeable accidents and motor vehicle violations are heavily surcharged.

Despite the state's policy on NJAIP rates, the plan has regularly asked for approval of its own rating system, its most recent application requesting a rate increase of 78 5 per cent.

"It would not be fair," the commissioner said, "to approve a separate rating system for the NJAIP and put a great part of the burden of assigned risk losses on good drivers in the plan, who shouldn't be in the plan at all."

In addition to the problem of growing losses, the NJAIP created another problem by its refusal to provide retroactive coverage for hundreds of motorists whose brokers failed to process their applications. The NJAIP responded to the commissioner's order to provide the coverage by filing suit in Superior Court seeking a declaratory judgment to the effect that it is not obligated to provide the coverage and that the affected motorists did not, in fact, have coverage. In its court complaint, the NJAIP conceded that it was created under New Jersey law and "is operated under rules and regulations promulgated by the Department of Insurance."

It was the commissioner's position that the rules of the Plan itself place an assigned risk broker in the same relationship to the companies as their own agents with power to provide binding coverage on receipt of an application. The Plan's rules specifically state that a failure on the part of a broker shall not "prejudice the rights of an applicant."

In a brief filed with the Appellate Division, it was argued that the NJAIP's refusal to provide retroactive coverage "severely prejudices persons who have applied for coverage in good faith and who have paid the necessary deposit (to the brokers) in the expectation that it would be obtained." The brief added:

> Both the applicants themselves and persons who may have accrued claims against them as a consequence of their operation of automobiles in the belief that they were in fact insured have been left in a state of serious uncertainty concerning whether claims will be paid.

The Department of Insurance regards the suit as of major importance because the fundamental question to be determined is whether, in providing insurance mandated by the State Legislature, the companies are free to frustrate that mandate to the detriment of consumers who acted in good faith in trying to comply with the mandate.

During the year, one dispute over the use of the rates for auto insurance approved for the Insurance Services Office, a rating bureau, was settled, and another arose.

The settlement involved the Kemper Group of companies. Kemper agreed to rebate approximately $220,000 to 10,800 auto insurance policyholders, bringing to an end protracted litigation over its unauthorized use of the ISO rates while its own independent application for a rate increase was pending.

The new dispute involved the Allstate Insurance Company's adoption of the ISO rates as of July 1 after the commissioner directed it not to. The commissioner said:

> The currently approved ISO rates do not reflect the different and presumably lower loss and expense experience of Allstate. It would therefore be inappropriate for Allstate to use those rates, which would mean an unexamined 12 per cent, 22 million dollar rate hike for its customers, effective July 1.

Subsequently, Allstate obtained a Superior Court ruling permitting it to charge the higher ISO rates, but at the same time it was orderd to pay the difference between its old rates and the ISO rates into an interest-bearing trust account to be refunded to policyholders if the court eventually rules in the commissioner's favor.

MALPRACTICE INSURANCE

The malpractice market, for the most part, continued to improve.

In 1980, sixty-nine New Jersey hospitals that obtain their malpractice insurance from the Health Care Insurance Exchange shared in a $7.8 premium refund for the years 1976 and 1977. The refund was made possible by a continuing review of HCIE's experience under a retrospective rating plan.

The non-profit HCIE was formed in 1976 by the New Jersey Hospital Association in response to problems of availability and affordability that marked the private commercial market for malpractice.

A review of the history of malpractice in New Jersey shows that what has been done to create a stable marketplace is a remarkable success story. The dramatic turnabout in the pricing of malpractice insurance resulted from a number of factors, beginning with the Hospital Association's formation of the Health Care Insurance Exchange to provide coverage that had become difficult to obtain and expensive in the regular market.

Because of its limited capital, the Health Care Insurance Exchange could not by itself serve the market fully, and the commissioner responded by activating the New Jersey Medical Malpractice Reinsurance Association, authorized in a law that took effect January 30, 1976.

The Reinsurance Association comprises all insurance companies licensed in New Jersey to write personal injury and property damage liability insurance. There are about 280 companies in the Association. Under its plan of operation, the Health Care Insurance Exchange writes insurance for hospitals and reinsures a major part of each risk with the Association.

Although the hospitals did well in the matter of the pricing of malpractice insurance, the story was somewhat mixed for physicians and surgeons. For the second consecutive year, the premiums for malpractice insurance for the psychiatrists insured by the Vigilant Insurance Company went down as the commissioner approved a 20 per cent decrease. The previous year a 19.9 per cent decrease was approved. On the other hand, the premium for medical malpractice insurance for doctors insured by their own company, the Medical Inter-Insurance Exchange of New Jersey, which came down in 1979, went up in 1980.

The Commissioner approved a rate revision with an average 7.9 per cent increase for the company, which was formed under the sponsorship of the Medical Society of New Jersey in 1977. The rate revision was based on actuarial projections of trends in the year ahead. The new rates, despite the increases, will still be less on the average than they were two years ago because of an average 8.3 per cent reduction approved in 1979.

For the other major insurer of hospitals, the St. Paul Fire and Marine Insurance Company, a rate decrease averaging 28 per cent was approved, reflecting the company's experience using a claims-made policy.

COMMERCIAL LINES DEREGULATION PROPOSED

Substantial deregulation of commercial lines insurance was recommended in a report to the Commissioner prepared by an Advisory Committee that had been studying the question of deregulation. The report was released at the annual convention of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners in New York.

The committee proposed enactment of legislation that would principally exempt "special risks" from the existing statutory obligation to obtain prior approval of the commissioner for rates and policy forms. Special risks were defined as those with an annual premium in excess of $10,000; those that are exotic, difficult to place or rate; and those for which there is no adequate market available among companies admitted to do business in New Jersey. The Department of Insurance would still retain regulatory oversight and carry out periodic inspections of the special risks market under the proposal.

Contrasting the need for regulation of personal lines of insurance with that of commercial lines, the committee stated that "personal lines by their very nature require a higher degree of regulation" because "it is the obligation of the regulator to protect groups who need protection." However, the committee added:

> Many commercial insureds are fully capable of protecting themselves. Their needs are known and large commercial insureds frequently have the capabilities and professional staff to satisfy them. Commercial insureds require flexibility to effectively negotiate both coverages and premiums.

The committee's report stressed that the recommended deregulation of commercial lines would free the Department of Insurance's professional and technical staff to devote more time and effort to the regulation of personal lines, such as automobile and homeowners insurance.

The report said:

> The Department of Insurance presently is obligated by statute to review and approve every rate and policy form used by licensed insurers for all coverages written for New Jersey risks. Extensive and often costly preparation is required of the applicant and the Department, to fulfill its mandated duties, must subject each filing to intense scrutiny. This system ads significantly to the cost of insurance because the expense of its maintenance is ultimately borne by both commercial insureds and the consumer.

Statistical support is required for rate filings and it is a difficult and time-consuming process to review and approve forms and any deviation. Further, many commercial risks are not subject to ratemaking that is statistically and actuarially based because the loss experience and associated expenses are not, in the argot of the profession, 'credible'.

BLUE CROSS AND BLUE SHIELD

The first rate increase for Blue Shield (Medical-Surgical Plan of New Jersey) in more than three years was announced.

The increase affected most, but not all, categories of coverage for small group and direct payment subscribers to the Blue Shield Plan, which provides coverage for medical services in connection with hospitalization. It took effect January 1, 1981.

The increase, which varied among categories of coverage on the basis of the claims experience of each, averaged 12 per cent and will yield an additional $8.7 million in yearly premium.

The Commissioner informed Blue Cross that it was responsible for payment in full for the cost of hospital radiological services received by its subscribers. He denied a request by Blue Cross for a change in the method of payment that would have imposed a financial burden on subscribers. At the same time, he denied a request by Blue Shield that payment of radiologists for their professional services to hospital patients be made its responsibility rather than Blue Cross's.

The commissioner's rulings were made necessary by refusal of radiologists at 36 hospitals in New Jersey to accept reimbursement for their hospitals, although radiologists' fees are a part of the Blue Cross payments to hospitals. Instead, the radiologists at the 36 hospitals began billing patients directly for the full amount of their fees, contending that the Blue Cross payments were inadequate.

Radiologists at the remaining New Jersey hospitals continued the practice of accepting hospital reimbursements for Blue Cross patients as payment in full.

Responding to the action of the radiologists at the 36 hospitals, Blue Cross proposed that it pay directly to subscribers the amount now included in the Blue Cross hospital rate for radiological services at the 36 hospitals, leaving radiologists free to bill patients for the difference between the Blue Cross payment and the higher amount they believe their services are worth. It was this proposal that the commissioner rejected.

The problem of radiologist' fees began about five years ago when some radiologists, although accepting reimbursement, billed patients for the "balance-due." Protracted litigation followed and the Appellate Division of Superior Court ruled that once the radiologists accepted the Blue Cross payments they could not balance-due bill.

However, the radiologists at the 36 hospitals have since engaged in what the commissioner called "deliberate circumvention" of the court's decision by refusing to accept the Blue Cross payments and billing patients for the full amount of their services.

TITLE INSURANCE

The Commissioner approved a manual of rates and charges for use by the title insurance industry.

The manual was filed by the New Jersey Land Title Insurance Rating Bureau, which represents all 20 title insurance companies licensed to do business in New Jersey. The manual replaces an interim rating system that had been in effect in new Jersey since May 29, 1979. There are no substantive differences between the manual and the interim rating system except that the manual codifies the rules under which the title insurance industry will operate in the State.

The industry's first uniform financial and statistical reporting system, which is expected to develop an adequate data base for future analysis of rates and expenses, was also approved.

OTHER MATTERS

Minimum standards for individual health insurance policies affecting sales solicitation and rate filings became effective in October. However, the deadline for bringing policy forms into compliance was extended into the following year.

The regulations mandate minimum benefits that must be offered by the companies and place new controls on both companies and agents to eliminate abusive, "hard-sell" tactics—such as persuading insureds to buy duplicate coverage and making false or misleading statements—a source of complaints, especially from senior citizens.

The regulations also give the Department of Insurance greater control over rates, establishing procedures for determining whether benefits offered by a policy are reasonable in relation to the premium by providing for an annual review of the cost-benefit reasonableness and by setting acceptable loss ratios for particular kinds of coverage. The loss ratio reflects the amount of premium of a policy form that is paid out in benefits.

Another important thrust of the regulation is to identify and penalize the relatively few agents who engage in improper sales activities and to make the companies fully accountable for their agents' conduct.

Penalties for violations of the regulations range from maximum fines of $2,000 for each violation to suspension or revocation of the license of an insurance company, agent, broker, or solicitor. In addition, companies will be subject to an equivalent fine imposed on any of their agents for violations.

The Commissioner approved a new manual of rates for Workmen's Compensation filed by the Compensation Rating Bureau that increases premiums by $97 million, or about 18.5 per cent. The new manual reflects the substantial increases in benefits mandated by a reform act adopted unanimously by both houses of the legislature.

Among the increased benefits provided by the act are a weekly minimum benefit of $49, up from $15, and maximum benefit of $185, up from $156; a death benefit of $2,000, up from $750; an increase in the maximum duration of benefit payments from 300 weeks to 400 weeks for temporary total disability and from 550 weeks to 600 weeks for permanent partial disability.

The new manual of rates also provides new definitions of certain intangible elements to eliminate minor and nuisance claims and to restrict broadening of the law. For instance, payments for minor cuts, bruises, sprains, scars, and mild dermatitis and mild bronchitis are eliminated, and stronger proof to establish work-related cardiac disabilities is required.

The Legislature's unanimous adoption of the reform act reflected the support given to it by both labor and management, labor because of the increased benefits and management because of the elimination of minor claims and tightening up of claims.

A series of workshops was held in each of the state's 21 counties by the Division of Consumer Services to train representatives of senior citizens' organizations to teach their fellow members about health insurance. A teaching kit, developed to accompany the department's Booklet, "A SHOPPER'S GUIDE TO LIFE & HEALTH INSURANCE FOR SENIOR CITIZENS," was used at the workshops. The kit reinforced the concepts presented in the shopper's guide through transparencies with accompanying narration, discussion topics, a close examination of what policy clauses really say, and a quiz section.

The shopper's guide is a 32-page publication written in easy-to-read language. It is primarily intended to aid senior citizens in deciding whether they need private health insurance to fill the Medicare gaps and what kind of insurance they should buy.
